Fighting the Obesity Epidemic in Indian Country

Purpose:

To bring evidence-based approaches and culturally appropriate, sustainable interventions to advocates and health staff working to reduce and eliminate obesity in American Indian communities.

Who should participate?

Indian Health Service staff, Tribal Health staff and other health care providers/practitioners who care for Native people.

Tentative Schedule:

8:00 am to 12:00 pm—Expert speakers on nutrition and physical activity to fight obesity and models that work.

Mark your calendar now to join us for this cost effective method of continued learning at a location near your workplace. Agenda and registration information to be mailed in early March.

Sponsored in part by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Public Health and Science, Region VIII.

Questions:

Call Premier Planning at 406-442-4141 or by email at gailb@mt.net. Please include Obesity in subject line.
